FECAL COLIFORMS:
One of the variety of germs found in the bulk soap study.

25% of bulk soap dispensers were contaminated with bacteria.

A recent study,³ conducted by microbiologists at the University of Arizona, found that 25% of bulk soap dispensers (the kind you refill from a gallon jug) contain soap with unsafe levels of bacteria. Fecal-based organisms were found in 16% of the samples. Washing with contaminated soap could actually place bacteria on your hands.

Is it worth the risk?
